DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Taille de Noyer is a 2½ story house resting on a modern reinforced concrete foundation which exhibits a rectangular plan measuring 78'8" along its east and west sides and 33'8" along its north and south sides. The house includes several sections of varying dates (see plan). To the north is located the oldest wing which originally stood as two single room log cabins separated by a dog trot. This section is constructed of hand hewn 6"-14" oak and walnut logs disposed horizontally, cut and sliced inside and out with bark remaining along their horizontals embedded in a mortar of lime and sand. Window and door frames are of hand-planed oak panels which are pinned to the horizontal logs with wooden pegs. Sills and floor joists are hand-hewn walnut logs. Finishing treatment here includes wide, random width pine flooring and hand-split oak lath faced with a plaster of sand and lime on the walls. Some of the log construction, lath and original plaster have been left exposed in the library and the northern wall of the dog trot hall.

Additions to the east and south of the original log building are of frame construction. The entire building has been faced with weatherboard, painted white, and capped with gabled and hipped roofs covered with asphalt shingles.

Notable decorative features of Taille de Noyer include the several sizes of Tuscan columns which adorn the deep galleries to the west and south and the Greek Revival Style main entry with its flanking Tuscan pilasters, transom, sidelights and entablature head. In addition, the French influenced style of this house, characterized by deep sheltered porches beneath gabled roofs which are often peaked in the manner of the 1840 addition here, is typical of the architecture from Florissant's French past and survives with some technical modifications to the present day (see pending National Register Inventory-Nomination Form for the City of St. Ferdinand Multiple Resource Area).

Alterations to Taille de Noyer, in addition to those indicated on the accompanying plans, include the enclosure of the dog trot and the addition of millwork around doors and windows of the twin cabins prior to 1830 and the construction of dormers on the north end and the addition of the second story there between 1828 and 1830. The addition of steam heating, plumbing and electrical systems, the removal of the second story porch from the west side of the southern ½ of house and its replacement with the present series of 16' wooden columns, the addition of the second story porch to the south facade, the addition of the second story porch on the east facade and the division of the second story longroom into two bedrooms separated by bath all occurred in 1922. Finally, in 1961 all chimneys and fireplace brick were removed when the house was moved 200 yards to the west and turned slightly to the west.

Taille de Noyer is presently in good condition in its role as a museum and headquarters for the Florissant Valley Historical Society. This organization constantly maintains this house and is presently completing the restoration of the second and third floors.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Taille de Noyer is significant as the former holding and the only remaining building in St. Louis directly associated with John Mullanphy, a noted St. Louis businessman, agricultural entrepreneur, humanist and philanthropist of the 19th century. Mullanphy was born in 1758 in Enniskillen, Northern Ireland. In 1789 he came to America, landing in Philadelphia. By 1798 he was employed as a bookseller in Kentucky and is known to have outfitted at least one schooner for East Indian trade. After the Louisiana Purchase, his ability in the French language, learned during his service in the Irish army while stationed in France, and his desire for opportunities in real estate, led him to St. Louis where he eventually acquired extensive holdings both in that city and in the nearby City of St. Ferdinand (Florissant). In addition, Mullanphy was responsible for the organization of Sacred Heart Orphan Asylum, a hospital and a home for destitute and aged widows, all in St. Louis (Darby, 67-81; Gill, 146-147; Hyde and Conrad, 1591). In 1805 he purchased Taille de Noyer.

The original log cabin on the property, which is incorporated in the present building, was probably constructed ca. 1800 by the original owner of the property, Hyacinthe Deshetres, one of the founding fathers of the City of St. Ferdinand (Deeds, Bk. A, 213). Taille de Noyer was acquired by John Mullanphy about 1805 and doubled as a hunting lodge and trading post for several years. In 1817, on the occasion of the marriage of his youngest daughter, Jane, to Charles Chambers, Mullanphy sold Taille de Noyer to the couple for $1.00 as a wedding gift (Deeds, Bk. H, p. 355). The Chambers' developed the property into a working farm. Their descendants remained on the property for nearly 140 years and enlarged it to its present condition. By 1954, the land associated with the house had dwindled from the 340 acres of the original Spanish land grant to Hyacinthe Deshetres, to 27 acres. In that year, 20 acres were purchased by the R-2 School District. By 1960 School District Expansion was again necessary and the house was condemned against the protests of its owner, Mrs. Julius Polk, the great, great granddaughter of John Mullanphy. In 1960, after negotiations between the Florissant Valley Historical Society and the R-2 School District, the Historical Society raised $10,000 and financed the moving of the house 200 yards to the west, to a plot of land leased to the school district. Unfortunately, the associated garconnière, which was constructed in 1830 adjoining the north side of the house, could not be moved and was demolished for lack of funds. In 1961, the Florissant Valley Historical Society began the restoration of the house which continues today.
